WHEN WE ASKED THE COMMUNITY TO BE THE REASON,
YOU ANSWERED.

During these unprecedented times,
it has been the volunteers of all ages,
community partners,
generous donors,
local businesses
and leaders who have made our work possible.

You are the reason we can impact so many.

United Way
United Way of Greater Waterbury
Dear Friends,

It has been a humbling year at United Way of Greater Waterbury as we rose to the challenge of an evolving pandemic, while fulfilling the promise of our daily work in the areas of Education, Financial Stability and Basic Needs. We are humbled by the unwavering support of our donors and corporations, the commitment of time and expertise of our volunteers, the dedication of our community partners and the appreciation expressed by those our collective impact touches. This Annual Report is a testament to the vital work we accomplished in 2020-2021, and to those who made it possible.

There are almost 40 volunteers, most serving on the three impact councils, one for each of the impact areas in which United Way of Greater Waterbury works: Basic Needs, Education and Financial Stability. Then there is a cabinet that provides another perspective. As the impact councils focus on their areas, the Community Impact Cabinet takes that integrated approach and provides recommendations to the board. We keep saying that people don’t only experience challenges in one impact area. So, we need both a detailed look and an integrated perspective.

None of that work would be possible without the generosity of people like you and your support of the Be the Reason campaign. Led by Campaign Chair John Hopkins, president of Post University, and Campaign Vice-Chair Karen Hinds, CEO of Workplace Success Group LLC, the campaign raised an amazing $4,110,000.

We continue to move forward, advancing our strategic plan which was approved by the board in 2020. We’re looking at how diversity, equity and inclusion fits into all of our community investments. In addition, we have sought to strengthen real community voice within our volunteer groups, with eight of the 11 new volunteers on our councils and Community Impact Cabinet identifying as people of color, which is bolstering confidence in our decisions.

In the coming months, we’ll be offering volunteer training called Implicit Bias in Fundraising so that, as these important decisions are made, we’re all aware of the preconceived notions we can bring to the table. We’ve heard more than a few volunteers express how excited they are.

But first, we pause and look back at the past year through this annual report, to celebrate the lives changed, and all of you who made those results possible.

Thank you to everyone who stepped up to Be the Reason help is there when it is needed most.

Sincerely,

Nancy E. Traver

LaGar’e January Martinez describes the time he’s spent at Waterbury Youth Services (WYS) as a long, positive journey. “They showed me opportunities that helped me develop into the person I am today. I could learn skills and listen to the perspectives and mindsets of a lot of people. They taught me to take a leadership role in my personal development.”

Olivia Dudley, positive youth development leader, related LaGar’e’s experience to the WYS mission, which is, “Guiding youth to discover their unique talents and potential for success—one life at a time.”

“We wouldnt’ be able to meet our mission and have the programs we do without funding from United Way,” Director of Program Operations Laura Cummings explained. “That is key and based on the fact that the goals for both organizations align very well. I can’t imagine a better relationship.”

As a freshman at Pace University, LaGar’e is taking courses in film and screen studies, a path that was inspired by his work as social media manager with WYS.

“We created the position because of LaGar’e’s interest in photography,” Laura said. “We pay attention to what interests the youth in our programs and then find relevant opportunities to build on that interest to achieve positive youth development. LaGar’e worked with our adult staff social media coordinator and it was wonderful to have him in that position.”

Amanda Augeri, programs facilitator on the Youth Development Team, said, “The goal is to help youth find where they want to go. LaGar’e found his path and what he was meant to study.”

She emphasized how much effort is put into listening. “We want to have different ways for youth to actively express themselves. Our Youth Empowerment Team is run by our youth and has a say in the programming and events that take place at WYS. When we say we try hard to listen to our youth, we mean it.”

In his dorm room, LaGar’e proudly displays the piece he made in a woodworking program, where he crafted his name as a sixth grader. “I may have participated in every program at WYS.”

He also studied journalism, “We reached out to the community and learned how to get deeper into topics, to find out what was true. We wrote articles and gave and received feedback, which made me see the full value of my work.”

“Not only have there been opportunities for me to grow but to see others grow with me and to gain a sense of community. The WYS community is diverse and every walk of life goes through those doors. They all have different backgrounds and cultures. I made friends with people I would never have spoken to otherwise and took a piece of those friendships with me.”

LaGar’e said his experiences at WYS taught him how to be open minded and to conduct himself professionally, skills that helped as he applied to college.

United Way’s education strategy provides opportunities so that children and youth can fulfill their potential. With increased exposure to educational experiences and out-of-school opportunities — including a deliberate and planned approach to increasing developmental assets — more kids are set up for success. To fulfill this strategy, we partner and invest in agencies with similar strategies and a proven record of attaining their goals.
Amanda said, "It feels very nice to see the impact we have on youth, to remember the years we spent with LaGar’e and see him in his dorm room during a Zoom call now."

Olivia pointed out that program participants receive a stipend of $65 per month, which helps develop good financial habits.

"I bought clothes, snacks and things I needed. It felt good because I didn't have to ask my mom but I had to be smart because it was only $65."

He also benefitted from tutoring services and appreciated that tutors would take the time to help others.

Lagar’e looks forward to sharing what he's learned as he goes forward. "WYS does so much for the community and now it's my turn to return the favor and give back to my community."

United Way’s investments in the impact area of Financial Stability aim to ensure that all Greater Waterbury residents have adequate economic self-sufficiency for themselves and their families.

The Naugatuck Valley Community College (NVCC) Financial Opportunity Center (FOC), a partnership with United Way of Greater Waterbury and Local Initiatives Support Corporation (LISC), offers a comprehensive set of resources that helps people improve their lives. When they receive the three services provided at the FOC — employment training, financial coaching and access to benefits — in an integrated way, clients are 50 percent more likely to land a well-paying job than those receiving employment services alone. The chance of them staying in that job long-term doubles when financial coaching reinforces the work of employment counseling.

NVCC Director of Community and Economic Development Fay Godbolt explained, “Community colleges ensure that people who are going back to school or getting back on their feet have the opportunity to access non-credit and workforce development courses. Anyone can register for the FOC but many students find the program because they are receiving SNAP benefits. The Department of Social Services funds their studies.”

The FOC opened in November 2020 at NVCC to offer the three-fold approach: employment training for those who need new skills, along with job placement support; financial education with one-on-one counseling; and access to income supports so that students such as veterans can find the right path to any benefits for which they are eligible but may not be aware exist or are having difficulty in claiming. After the course ends, the FOC stays in touch with students for 30 to 90 days, providing both pre- and post-budget support and job follow-up.

An investment from United Way supports the financial coaching of FOC clients. Juan De La Rosa, the financial coach who was trained by LISC, works closely with the FOC SNAP Coordinator. “Jen, our local coordinator, does a great job of talking to people and learning about them to ask questions such as if they have a checking account and how they use their bank services. We can expand the coaching from there.”

Questions are designed to help students identify and set their own goals, such as to save for a large expense such as a car or house. “We give feedback but we’ve learned from LISC how to respond without telling them any answers. There are no wrong responses and it is up to them to define their lives,” Juan said.

The purpose of the program and his work as a financial coach is meant to be a force for good by providing the financial literacy education as well as the follow-up help people need to succeed.

That success is measured to demonstrate how the program benefits individuals.

SNAP recipients can schedule an information session and review all programs. “Most fill out an application and move forward,” said Fay. “LISC is focused on bundling services; I call them wrap-around services because the resources cover every aspect of family life so no one falls through a gap. Resources that include job training or help with finances. One of the great things I see coming out of the program are people who didn’t budget are now working on their household budgets.”

Jim Horan, LISC Connecticut’s executive director, said, “We know the FOC model of integrated services works to move clients toward financial stability. We are thrilled with how NVCC has embraced this model, and grateful to the United Way for its support to make this possible in Waterbury.”
Juan agreed, “LISC and the students have trusted us with an opportunity and we want people to know that we’re here to make something good happen. We’re excited for the second year coming up.”

The FOC served 127 people its first year. 88% identified as female, 52% African American and 31% Hispanic. The NVCC FOC is simultaneously narrowing racial wealth gaps in historically underinvested communities.

The FOC will expand to continue the work of moving people from where they struggle to make a living wage to where they can take care of their families and improve their standard of living.

Fay is grateful to LISC and United Way for making the coordination possible. “When we can bring resources together, we get more traction and solutions are better.” She added, “I’ve seen what’s possible with this program and that’s why I’m so excited. We’re meeting people where they are and making sure we help bring them up.”

NVCC CEO Lisa Dresdner, Ph.D., noted how the FOC is part of NVCC’s consistent efforts to engage in the work that meets the needs of everyone in the communities served. She said, “We’re grateful for our partnership with United Way of Greater Waterbury and LISC for the funding that allows us to make a tangible difference in peoples’ lives. Fay has put together a great team, and with her leadership and the wholistic approach of the FOC, people will have more hope and clear pathways for a brighter future.”

The United Way’s basic needs strategy helps people become more self-sufficient. When our neighbors can access safe and affordable housing — temporary and permanent — as well as healthcare and affordable, nutritious food, then our community can move toward a stable, healthy future. Helping one individual or family to address multiple challenges helps us all.

John had been doing well and was getting his life back on track after experiencing homelessness triggered by unemployment. But, shortly after moving into an apartment with his 16-year-old daughter and restarting a stable lifestyle, he lost his job again and fell behind in rent.

Sofia Swaby, housing program coordinator with Salvation Army Waterbury Corps, knows that, sometimes, the journey from survival mode to independence is not a linear path. She can only surmise that John was reluctant to share his downward change in circumstances when he chose to find shelter with the St. Vincent DePaul Mission of Waterbury instead of returning to the Salvation Army’s shelter.

Many Greater Waterbury agencies collaborate with each other to improve services to the community. When Salvation Army discovered where he was staying, his former case manager offered to work with him again, assessing the situation and suggesting a referral to mental health services. Like the donors who support United Way’s strategic approaches, partner agencies are the reason why solutions can work in spite of additional problems.

“John is now working full time again and saving money,” Sofia emphasized that financial coaching is intended to build habits on which clients like John can rely to be successful on their own. “I had an in-depth conversation with John about budgeting and prioritizing. I need to see deposited checks on his bank statement. We offer many resources here but the actual work is up to the client.”

She added, “His hard work is not just helping himself but providing for his family as his daughter is very successful in school.”

The Salvation Army’s family shelter is open 24/7 and offers breakfast, lunch and dinner. There are resources such as computer stations so that children can do their schoolwork or adults can look for jobs. There are also classes on resume writing and postings for job leads and apartment opportunities.

Those resources include a collaboration between Salvation Army Waterbury Corps and Northwest Regional Workforce Investment Board.

“We lost a lot of resources because of COVID-19 and now we’re relearning what used to be our expertise. I just spent three weeks pulling together information for a new resource binder so clients know about daycare opportunities, SNAP and how to access services through 2-1-1.” According to Sofia, and the staff are unsung heroes.

“There’s not a day when we’re not here, meeting the basic needs of our neighbors. We couldn’t keep our doors open without United Way.”

Donors are breaking cycles by helping kids to be fed and rested, able to stay awake in school and learn. Life’s comebacks don’t follow a movie storyline. Through proven strategies and support, United Way partners like the Salvation Army are delivering hope to people in spite of real-life setbacks.
“At the end of the day, the success stories outweigh the stressors. When a client gets ‘back to normal’ or comes into the shelter to say, ‘Thanks to you, I’m reunited with my kids,’ it’s great to know you helped. Knowing that there is one little thing we did to help an individual or another family become successful is why we do what we do.”

UPSTARTERS is a youth volunteer engagement strategy that gives local youth exposure to the role they can play in addressing community needs. Rather than hoping that youth learn about volunteerism or philanthropy by the time they are adults, UPSTARTERS creates opportunities today. UPSTARTERS is focused on the future generation of United Way learning to lead now.

Projects included:

- Children’s Community School Clean Up Day
- Kennedy High School Tee Shirt & Mask Making Workshops
- Collection of Holiday Gift Cards for Waterbury Youth Services
- Community Card Making Project for Local Healthcare Workers
- Need To Read Community Project Online Reading Activities
- Positive Youth Development Leadership Summit Participation
- Stock the Pantry Volunteering
- And more!

Corporate Volunteer Engagement provides local employees with the opportunity to engage directly with the community they support. They experience a deeper understanding of how United Way makes a difference by participating in a project or event that directly correlates with the work of United Way of Greater Waterbury, learning not only about the need but the strategies behind the solutions.

Corporate volunteers participated in:

- Adopt a Family for the Holidays
- Volunteer Income Tax Assistance
- Diaper Drive
- Stock the Pantry
- Painting at Partner Agencies
- Walk a Mile in Someone Else’s Shoes
- United Way Boards, Councils and Committees

$25,000 for COVID-19 response – Basic Needs Gift Cards

At the onset of COVID-19, United Ways throughout Connecticut partnered for a state-wide COVID-19 response fund to deploy financial resources to individuals and families economically affected by the pandemic, including ALICE (Asset Limited, Income Constrained and Employed) households. Consumer purchase data shows 75% was used to meet those basic needs of food, utilities, household supplies and transportation.

In a continuing effort to support ALICE households, specifically targeted but not limited to: First Responders, Healthcare Personnel, Grocery Store Workers, Retail Workers, Public Transit and School Bus Drivers, Daycare Services and Childcare workers, an additional grant funded by the Jewish Federation of Western Connecticut was initiated.

Community organizations partnered with the United Way of Greater Waterbury and Jewish Federation of Western Connecticut to identify ALICE families and individuals in the named categories as recipient card holders. Partners included Bridge to Success Community Collaborative, Town of Cheshire Department of Human Services, Hispanic Coalition of Greater Waterbury and Neighborhood Housing Services of Waterbury. A total of 120, $200 gift cards were allocated to eligible households.
United Way was founded by volunteers, and it is sustained by volunteers. As our most trusted resource, our volunteers are engaged in creating a shared vision and taking action to address the underlying causes of our region's most serious problems.

The United Way of Greater Waterbury has provided services to our community since 1942, making a positive difference in the lives of countless individuals. Over time, the needs and types of services have changed, but United Way of Greater Waterbury’s commitment to investing in our community’s future and enriching lives is constant.

The 1942 Society recognizes those individuals who have chosen to have a significant impact on the future of our community by arranging for a planned gift to United Way of Greater Waterbury.

If you have included United Way of Greater Waterbury in your estate plans or will and your name is not included, please contact: Tomeka Cole, 203-757-9855 x17 or tcole@unitedwaygw.org.
